In the land of Brunello

We're at Rosewood Castiglion del Bosco, in the Val d'Orcia Nature Reserve, the region where Brunello di Montalcino wine is produced, at the home of Massimo and Chiara Ferragamo. Bought by the family in 2003, the estate covers 2,000 hectares and boasts an over eight hundred year history. It includes a ruined castle, a mediaeval church and the Borgo, a historic village that's been given a new lease on life. All in all it's one of Italy's largest private properties.

Excellent wine, exquisite hospitality and a spellbinding landscape combine to create a magical location. Guests stay in one of the ten villas or twenty-three suites in the renovated village, the resort's beating heart. Here there are two outstanding restaurants, the rustic Osteria La Canonica and the elegant restaurant Campo del Drago, with a cookery school, a boutique full of refined, elegant objects, the organic vegetable garden, eternity pool and fitness centre. Then there's the Spa at Rosewood Castiglion del Bosco Borgo, an oasis of peace offering La Prairie treatments and an authentically Tuscan bodycare line by The Spa, designed to regenerate body and mind with treatments inspired by the natural bounty of south Tuscany. With sauna, Turkish baths, relaxation area and a luxuriant private garden this refuge offers some serious de-stressing. The holistic approach to well-being is completed by idyllic natural surroundings, from fresh local dishes to an exciting range of outdoor activities.

And as if this weren't enough, there is a cutting edge winery, a centre of excellence for the production of Brunello di Montalcino, and Italy's only private golf course, eighteen holes in an extraordinarily beautiful setting, designed by Tom Weiskopf.
